

The happiest starship

Posted originally on the Ad Astra :: Star Trek Fanfiction Archive at <http://www.adastrafanfic.com/works/1465>.

Rating:	General Audiences
Archive Warning:	No Archive Warnings Apply
Fandom:	Star Trek: Voyager , Star Trek: Prodigy
Character:	Kathryn Janeway (Hologram)
Additional Tags:	Humor , Crossover
Language:	English
Series:	Part 15 of fan flashworks , Part 21 of inking it out
Stats:	Published: 2024-03-21 Words: 157 Chapters: 1/1

The happiest starship

by lilly_c

Summary

“Problem Voyager?”

Notes

No spoilers takes place post Endgame and pre Lost and Found. Written for the fan_flashworks prompt ticket. Attempted humour. Partly inspired by this bsky post. Any mistakes are my own and unintentional.

“Welcome to the starship Voyager. I am the holographic representation of it’s Captain, Kathryn Janeway,” Hologram Janeway spoke to the empty transporter room as though she was greeting guests to what was now the museum honouring Voyager’s many adventures and its legacy.

Voyager let out an audible groan at hearing the oft-repeated speech. Her past life exploring the Delta Quadrant suddenly far more appealing than been a glorified tourist attraction.

“Problem Voyager?”

“Your job is to stay in the transporter room and check tickets. Nothing else.” Voyager became quiet in thought for a moment. Thank god Harry and B’Elanna never finished retrofitting me with holo-emitters for trying to get the EMH out of sickbay before he acquired his mobile emitter.

“Love you, Voyager,” Hologram Janeway teased, taking a swig of her holographic mug of black coffee. “You always were the happiest starship in the fleet,” lightly laughing as she waited for the ships response.

“Cram it, Captain.”

Please drop by the archive and comment to let the author know if you enjoyed their work!